All calls originating from Nand Persaud International Communications Inc. are done through a dialer system which is initiated when a person using the system starts the process of calling a number. Everyone using the system has their own unique account that is password protected and accessible on the local network. To prevent unauthorized use of the system, a block all policy is implemented to block any unauthorized request originating outside of the network unless explicitly allowed by the system administrator.

I hereby declare that the above is true.
